One day, while Manu was bathing in the river, he found a tiny fish, Mataya, who begged the wise man to protect him.

Lord, I'm a tiny little fish. I'm afraid of bigger, stronger fish! Please protect me, O ascetic.

The strongest fish eat the weakest: such is the immutable fate that is assigned to us.

Please save me from these waves that terrorize me and where I risk death. I will reward you for what you do. (Mahabharata)

Manu then took the fish home, where it grew and grew until the day he asked him to release it back into the sea. earth, and he advised the sage to build a gigantic boat to take refuge there. Manu obeyed the fish's advice and took animals, seeds of all kinds and the seven Great Old Ones aboard his ship.
